First Round

In 2000, a special regional Lenya Competition was held in Germany, co-sponsored by the Kurt-Weill-Gesellschaft (Kurt Weill Society), as part of Weill's centenary celebration. This year we are pleased to welcome as guests a delegation from Weill's birthplace, Dessau, Germany, which includes Mayor Klemens Koschig; leaders of the Kurt-Weill-Gesellschaft Thomas Markworth, Walter Londong and Wolfgang Brandt; and the newly appointed Intendant of Dessau's annual Kurt Weill Fest, Michael Kaufmann. See www.kurt-weill.de for more information on the festival.

The Kurt Weill Foundation is grateful to the University of Rochester’s Eastman School of Music for hosting today’s competition as well as the regional round in Kilbourn Hall. In particular, thanks are due to Andrew Green, Director of Concert Operations; Serin Kim Hong, Assistant Director of Concert Operations; and Helene Snihur, Assistant Director of Public Relations.

The Kurt Weill Foundation for Music, Inc. administers, promotes, and perpetuates the legacies of Kurt Weill and Lotte Lenya. It encourages broad dissemination and appreciation of Weill’s music through support of performances, productions, recordings, and scholarship; it fosters understanding of Weill’s and Lenya’s lives and work within diverse cultural contexts; and, building upon the legacies of both, it nurtures talent, particularly in the creation, performance, and study of musical theater in its various manifestations and media.

Timothy Nolen’s artistry as actor and singer has enabled him to move effortlessly between the worlds of opera and musical theater. At the Metropolitan Opera, he was Beckmesser in Die Meistersinger, Krušina in The Barbered Bride, and Baron Zetia in The Merry Widow. He created the role of Markus Schuler in the premiere of Bolcom’s McTeague at Lyric Opera of Chicago, and has also created the roles of Junior in Bernstein’s A Quiet Place, the title role in Floyd’s Willie Stark, and Lord Henry Wotton in Hans Kox’s The Portrait of Dorian Gray. Other signature roles include George in Of Mice and Men, which Mr. Nolen recently performed at Florida Grand Opera, and Judge Turpin in Sweeney Todd, which he performed with Lyric Opera of Chicago and in the PBS Great Performances production of Sweeney Todd, the 2004 winners Amy Justman and Richard Todd Adams, performing the revue Unsung Well at the Kurt Weill Fest Dessau in 2005. Legendary soprano Teresa Stratas has judged the competition nine times, and the roster of other judges includes celebrated theater director and producer Harold Prince, Tony Award winning actress Victoria Clark, and composer William Bolcom, as well as many other prominent musical theater experts. Commenting on the unique nature of a competition that focuses on the combination of singing and acting, Teresa Stratas said: “This is the only competition that requires young artists to prepare so many kinds of songs. It’s a terrific idea that does honor to both the art form and Lotte Lenya.”

In addition to the top prizes, judges may award special prizes for excellence in one dimension of the competition, including Lys Symonette Awards, named in honor of Weill’s musical assistant on Broadway and Lenya’s longtime accompanist and advisor. Prior to the finals, eight promising contestants aged 19-23 received Young Talent Awards of $500, encouraging them to continue their development and return to the competition in the future. Winners were Krista Buccello (Boston, MA), Margaret Dietrich (Oklahoma City, OK), Lora Lee Gayer (Naples, FL), Joseph Mikolaj (New Haven, CT), Annie Rago (Pittsburgh, PA), and Blair Goldberg, Adam Richardson, and Daniel Schwalt, all of New York City. This year an award for a non-finalist demonstrating outstanding vocal promise was established to honor singer-actress and competition judge Grace Keagy (1921-2009). The first recipient was Julia Teitel, 26, a 2008 graduate of the Eastman School’s Master of Music program.

About the Lotte Lenya Competition

In 1998, to celebrate the centenary of Lotte Lenya (1898-1981), an extraordinary singer/actress and one of the foremost interpreters of the music of her husband, Kurt Weill, the Board of Trustees of the Kurt Weill Foundation for Music approved President Kim Kowalke’s proposal to establish an annual Lotte Lenya Competition. Dr. Kowalke, the Richard L. Turner Professor in Humanities at the University of Rochester and professor of musicology at the Eastman School, arranged for the inaugural contest to be held at the Eastman School of Music to coincide with Sibley Music Library’s receipt of Weill’s holograph scores from Vienna. Even as the competition has grown into an international event, the Eastman School has continued to host the finals.

The Lotte Lenya Competition recognizes talented young singer/actors aged 19-32 who are dramatically and musically convincing in contrasting modes of theater music by Kurt Weill and other composers. More than a vocal competition, the Lenya Competition emphasizes idiomatic performance of a wide range of repertoire and the acting of songs within a dramatic context.

Competition guidelines require each contestant to prepare four selections—two contrasting numbers by Weill, an aria from opera or operetta, and a song from the American musical theater. Selections must be presented in their original languages, keys and arrangements, and at least one must be sung in a language other than English.

Over the past 12 years, the competition has grown yearly in size and scope. In the first year, 17 contestants, all Eastman students, competed for a top prize of $1,000. This year, 230 contestants from 12 countries entered the first round of auditions, and 16 finalists from the United States, Canada, Italy and Germany are competing for top prizes of $15,000, $10,000 and $7,500. Each finalist receives a $500 prize and an honorarium to defray the costs of traveling to the finals in Rochester. In awarding more than $300,000 in prizes and awards since the competition began, the Kurt Weill Foundation has recognized the talent and supported the careers of dozens of rising stars.

Competition winners and finalists have gone on to play leading and featured roles on Broadway, in regional theaters and national tours (Richard Todd Adams, Kyle Barisich, Jennifer Dyan Goode, Zachary James, Amy Justman, Analisa Leaming, Erik Liberman, Lauren Worsham); appear in major opera houses, including the Metropolitan Opera, Lyric Opera of Chicago, Houston Grand Opera, Opéra National de Paris and Deutsche Oper Berlin (Elaine Alvarez, Liam Bonner, Nicole Cabell, Lucas Meachem, Rodell Rosel); and sing in concert at the Tanglewood, Spoleto, and Ravinia Festivals. Collectively, they have earned dozens of prizes in some of the world’s most prestigious vocal competitions, including winning the BBC Cardiff Singer of the World Competition (Nicole Cabell) and Grand Prize of the Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions (Paul Corona, Rodell Rosel).

Finals Program

In this round, each finalist will have fourteen minutes in which to present a program of four contrasting selections, as listed in the program below. To ensure that each contestant has the opportunity to sing his/her complete program, please withhold applause until the conclusion of the final selection of each contestant.

Legendary soprano Teresa Stratas has judged the competition nine times, and the roster of other judges includes celebrated theater director and producer Harold Prince, Tony Award winning actress Victoria Clark, and composer William Bolcom, as well as many other prominent musical theater experts. Commenting on the unique nature of a competition that focuses on the combination of singing and acting, Teresa Stratas said: “This is the only competition that requires young artists to prepare so many kinds of songs. It’s a terrific idea that does honor to both the art form and Lotte Lenya.”

In addition to the top prizes, judges may award special prizes for excellence in one dimension of the competition, including Lys Symonette Awards, named in honor of Weill’s musical assistant on Broadway and Lenya’s longtime accompanist and advisor. Prior to the finals, eight promising contestants aged 19-23 received Young Talent Awards of $500, encouraging them to continue their development and return to the competition in the future. Winners were Krista Bucellato (Boston, MA), Margaret Dietrich (Oklahoma City, OK), Lisa Lee Gayer (Naples, FL), Joseph Mikolaj (New Haven, CT), Annie Rago (Pittsburgh, PA), and Blair Goldberg, Adam Richardson, and Daniel Schwalt, all of New York City. This year an award for a non-finalist demonstrating outstanding vocal promise was established to honor singer-actress and competition judge Grace Keagy (1921-2009). The first recipient was Julia Teitel, 26, a 2008 graduate of the Eastman School’s Master of Music program.
About the Lotte Lenya Competition

In 1998, to celebrate the centenary of Lotte Lenya (1898-1981), an extraordinary singer/actress and one of the foremost interpreters of the music of her husband, Kurt Weill, the Board of Trustees of the Kurt Weill Foundation for Music approved President Kim Kowalke’s proposal to establish an annual Lotte Lenya Competition. Dr. Kowalke, the Richard L. Turner Professor in Humanities at the University of Rochester and professor of musicology at the Eastman School, arranged for the inaugural contest to be held at the Eastman School of Music to coincide with Sibley Music Library’s receipt of Weill’s holograph scores from Vienna. Even as the competition has grown into an international event, the Eastman School has continued to host the finals.

The Lotte Lenya Competition recognizes talented young singer/actors aged 19-32 who are dramatically and musically convincing in contrasting modes of theater music by Kurt Weill and other composers. More than a vocal competition, the Lenya Competition emphasizes idiomatic performance of a wide range of repertoire and the acting of songs within a dramatic context.

Competition guidelines require each contestant to prepare four selections—two contrasting numbers by Weill, an aria from opera or operetta, and a song from the American musical theater. Selections must be presented in their original languages, keys and arrangements, and at least one must be sung in a language other than English.

Over the past 12 years, the competition has grown yearly in size and scope. In the first year, 17 contestants, all Eastman students, competed for a top prize of $1,000. This year, 230 contestants from 12 countries entered the first round of auditions, and 16 finalists from the United States, Canada, Italy and Germany are competing for top prizes of $15,000, $10,000 and $7,500. Each finalist receives a $500 prize and an honorarium to defray the costs of traveling to the finals in Rochester. In awarding more than $300,000 in prizes and awards since the competition began, the Kurt Weill Foundation has recognized the talent and supported the careers of dozens of rising stars.

Competition winners and finalists have gone on to play leading and featured roles on Broadway, in regional theaters and national tours (Richard Todd Adams, Kyle Barisich, Jennifer Dyan Goode, Zachary James, Amy Justman, Analisa Leaming, Erik Liberman, Lauren Worsham); appear in major opera houses, including the Metropolitan Opera, Lyric Opera of Chicago, Houston Grand Opera, Opéra National de Paris and Deutsche Oper Berlin (Elaine Alvarez, Liam Bonner, Nicole Cabell, Lucas Meachem, Rodell Rosel); and sing in concert at the Tanglewood, Spoleto, and Ravinia Festivals. Collectively, they have earned dozens of prizes in some of the world’s most prestigious vocal competitions, including winning the BBC Cardiff Singer of the World Competition (Nicole Cabell) and Grand Prize of the Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions (Paul Corona, Rodell Rosel).

Finals Program

In this round, each finalist will have fourteen minutes in which to present a program of four contrasting selections, as listed in the program below. To ensure that each contestant has the opportunity to sing his/her complete program, please withhold applause until the conclusion of the final selection of each contestant.

The audience is invited to return for the evening concert, which starts at 8 p.m.
