Looking Back: 20 – and 120 – Years

The twentieth anniversary of the Lotte Lenya Competition coincides with the 120th birthday of its namesake. That isn't coincidental, as I conceived the competition as an Eastman event in 1998 to celebrate her 100th birthday. I thought that it might be a fitting one-off tribute, in that Lenya's career encompassed, in addition to her landmark performances and recordings of Weill's music, opera/opera in Europe and musical theater on both sides of the Atlantic. The inaugural event also celebrated the arrival at Sibley Music Library of Weill's manuscripts of the scores published in Vienna by Universal Edition prior to his flight from the Nazis in 1933. And now, twenty years later, those documents remain on loan in the vault across the street, while the Competition has grown gradually but exponentially into one of the most prestigious and high-stakes international contests for singing actors. In retrospect, not in my most fanciful dreams could I have imagined such a trajectory.

That success required paradigm shifts and aesthetic reassessments that were but glimmers on the horizon twenty years ago. At the time, opera singers were routinely "elevating" Broadway musicals with their pearly tones and incomprehensible "singer-ese" (think of the recording of West Side Story with Kiri Te Kanawa as Maria and Jose Carreras as Tony), and television and movie stars were routinely faking their way vocally on Broadway. Not everything has changed, but now major orchestras routinely present concert versions of musicals and opera companies include the classics of the American musical theater in their seasons. And the "cross-over" phenomenon has morphed to the almost unimaginable in 1998, with Broadway baby Kelli O'Hara appearing this spring as Despina in Così fan tutte uptown at the Met while Renee Fleming takes on Nettie in Carousel at the Imperial on 45th Street. Even the training offered the next generation of singers is starting to catch up. From the perspective that informed my motivations in founding the Lenya Competition, that's all for the better.

From the outset, the Competition has tried to nurture precisely the sort of performer who could "do it all" by performing idiomatically the full range of music theater. That goal has determined both the range of required repertoire and the composition of the jury for the finals – in an attempt to balance acting and singing, Broadway and opera. Sometimes Lenya-winners have gone on to exclusively operatic careers, sometimes to careers grounded in musical theater. But that has usually been by choice, not because of limitation in ability or experience. And more and more the boundaries between categories of both repertoire and performer have been blurred, if not erased in new works for the music theater. As the survey of the achievements of some previous winners elsewhere in this program amply demonstrates ("Where Are They Now?"), the alumni of the Competition collectively offer ongoing homage to both Lenya and Weill, as well as their shared values.

About the Competition

In 1998, to honor the centenary of the birth of Lotte Lenya (1898-1981), an extraordinary singer/actress and one of the foremost interpreters of the music of her husband, Kurt Weill (1900-1950), the Kurt Weill Foundation for Music established the annual Lotte Lenya Competition. The competition recognizes talented young singer/actors who are dramatically and musically convincing in repertoire ranging from opera/opera to contemporary Broadway scores, with a focus on the works of Kurt Weill. More than a vocal competition, the Lotte Lenya Competition emphasizes idiomatic performances of diverse repertoire and the acting of songs and arias within a dramatic context.
